Administrative Changes Transform Xavier

Currie Resigns

BY PAUL BLAIR

The Rev. Charles L. Currie, S.J., president of Xavier University, announced his resignation from that position on July 31.

Currie cited "honest and honorable disagreements on what is best for Xavier" as the reason for his resignation. The resignation will not take effect until June 30, 1986.

The board of trustees will appoint a search committee shortly to seek candidates as Currie's successor.

During the intervening year, Currie will be working to strengthen Xavier and to make the transition to a new administration as smooth as possible. He emphasized the importance of leaving Xavier on a positive note.

"I feel at peace with the way things are going," Currie said. "We are basically on a clear course, and there is no real turmoil."

Currie's resignation came as a result of differences with some faculty and trustees over the best direction for the university. "As a chemist, I realize the importance of good chemistry," he stated. "While I enjoy good working relationships with many members of the university community, for a sizable portion there is an honest disagreement on what is the best direction for Xavier to follow."

Currie enumerated allocation of financial resources, stress on particular programs, priorities and the rate of change as important factors in these disagreements. Another issue was the lack of cost-of-living or merit pay raises to the faculty due to Xavier's $600,000

Earlier in the year, the Xavier chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) had adopted a resolution of no confidence in Currie's leadership.

Currie has served as president of Xavier for three years. During this time, the university made progress in instituting faculty enrichment programs, in recruiting National Merit Scholars and honors students, and in programming for student development. The U.S. Shoe property was converted into the A.B. Cohen Center, and the College of Business Administration was expanded to admit new faculty offices.

Subsequent to Currie's announcement, some community leaders expressed regret at his departure. Currie's community involvement, exemplified in his action to reduce tensions between Norwood and Evanston residents after several incidents last year, was such to earn him a citation from the Cincinnati Human Relations Commission for leadership in promoting positive community relations.

Minahan Takes Leave Of Absence

BY BRIAN STAPLETON

On Wednesday, Aug. 14, 1985, Xavier University announced that John P. Minahan, the first layman ever to serve as Xavier's vice-president for Academic Affairs, has been given an administrative leave.

Minahan's leave takes effect immediately and is to last the entire academic year. In his absence, Rev. Charles Currie, president of Xavier, will work with the academic deans and co-ordinate academic affairs.

Minahan came to Xavier July 1, 1982, the same day Fr. Currie took over as president. Currie announced his resignation only two weeks before news of Minahan's leave was released. Citing disagreements with faculty and the board of trustees, Currie's resignation does not go into effect until June 30, 1986.

Minahan came to Xavier from the

Dr. John P. Minahan

University of North Florida in Jacksonville, where he held the same title as at Xavier. Prior to that, he worked at the State University of New York in Buffalo, from 1969 to 1978. While at Xavier, Minahan strove to maintain healthy enrollments and revenues, as well as national prominence among private colleges.

Minahan is one of five finalists for the president's job at Rhode Island College in Providence.

New Vice President Named

BY CAROLYN PARTRIDGE

Mr. William Gioielli was named Xavier's Vice President for University Relations this August. The appointment was effective August 21.

Gioielli replaced James Sassen, who moved to Loyola University of Chicago. Sassen holds the job of associate vice president of development there.

As vice president of university relations, Gioielli (joy-elly) has responsibility for fundraising, alumni affairs, public relations and general development.

The new vice president went through an extensive screening process. According to Rev. Charles L. Currie, S.J., president of Xavier, "The process included the review of more than seventy-five applications, campus visits by six applicants who were interviewed by a screening committee composed of faculty, administration and alumni representatives and members of the Board of Trustees, and follow-up visits by two of the candidates."

Previously, Gioielli was the director of development at Trinity College in Washington, D.C.

He has also had experience in alumni fundraising, regional development offices, and coordination of a Gioielli is a Magna Cum Laude graduate of Georgetown University and holds a Masters in Business Administration from George Mason University. He served the United States Army as a member of the Corps of Engineers in Viet Nam, for which he earned the Bronze Star.

Partridge Named New Dean

BY CAROLYN PARTRIDGE

Dr. Milton A. Partridge was named Executive Dean of the College of Professional Studies August 29. Drs. Charles Cusick, Frank Mastrianna and Roger Fortin made the announcement as acting associate vice presidents for academic affairs.

Partridge has served as coordinator of academic programs in the college for the past year. His appointment was recommended upon with consultation of the chairmen in the college and the University Faculty Committee.

The new position was created as a result of a restructuring of the university. The College of Professional Studies was created and exists alongside the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Business Administration. The Graduate School was eliminated in this restructuring, so that each college would have graduate programs under its own administration.

The College of Professional Studies includes the Department of Social Work, Criminal Justice Programs, the Nursing Department, the Department of Education, the Department of Health and Hospital Administration, and the Mortuary Science program.

Partridge had worked at Xavier since 1966. He has served in various roles as professor of Education, associate dean of the College of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, and chairman of the Department of Education.

coordinator of student services and campus ministry for the Edgely campus.

Resident Directors will be replacing the Graduate Assistants of the past years. There is one RD per hall. Greg Moser will head Sullivan Hall, Greg Schlomer will lead Brockman Hall, Karen Plaut will be RD for Kuhlman Hall, and Randal McCravy concludes the list as director of Husman Hall. As in the past, there will be one Resident Assistant (an undergraduate) per wing.

Xavier Requires Health Insurance

BY PAUL BLAIR

Xavier University will be asking that all full-time undergraduate students show evidence of health insurance coverage this semester.

The requirement comes as a result of a new arrangement with Blue Cross/Blue Shield to provide health insurance at a discount rate to students not already covered under a policy.

A mass mailing was sent to students in August to inform them of the new arrangement and to ask that they subscribe or show evidence of other coverage.

According to Dr. Lon Kriner, director of the McGrath Health and Counseling Center, many students with insurance ignored the mailing. Kriner emphasized that without evidence of other coverage, the university will assume that students wish to subscribe to the new policy.

According to Kriner, many students may be billed for the new policy without actually receiving insurance coverage due to their failure to fill out an application.

In the future, these procedures will be handled at registration. For the time being, Kriner added, students who have not responded to the mailing should contact the McGrath Health and Counseling Center.

Under the new plan, students can "save fifty per cent on a very fine policy," said Kriner. "It costs less than one typical visit to an emergency room."

The Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage is equivalent to that which covers faculty and staff and to typical Blue Cross/Blue Shield policies for industry. Yet Kriner emphasized that this policy was selected out of many possibilities. "We shopped around," he said.

"Typically, college-age students do not think a lot about health insurance," said Kriner. He explained that the new policy was created out of concern arising from several incidents last year in which students who were not covered by insurance policies incurred large medical bills.

Many other universities are also moving to require health insurance coverage, according to Kriner. While the university is not technically liable for students' medical bills, students who are not covered and are unable to pay are "bad PR for the university."

said Kriner. "So far, area hospitals have been very good to us."

While it is sometimes the case that universities will make their policies mandatory, this is not the case at Xavier. While Kriner admits that this option was discussed as a way to reduce rates significantly, such a move was ultimately seen as not viable.

According to Dr. Arthur Shriberg, vice president for student development, the university does not benefit financially from this arrangement. While Blue Cross/Blue Shield did pay for the direct costs of Xavier's mailing, the company did not cover other costs such as staff time.

The new arrangement may have some detrimental effect on admissions, according to Rene Durand, dean of admissions and financial aid. "Any increase in fees will have an effect on admissions," said Durand. He noted, however, that the enrollment outlook seems favorable this year.

In the past, Xavier has required that its athletes have their own health insurance. According to Jeff Fogelson, director of athletics, a university policy covers the costs of competition-related injuries over the amount covered by the student's own insurance.

Fogelson also commented on the possibility that scholarships for athletes might now be extended to include health insurance. "Legally speaking, if it is recognized as a mandatory fee, then that could be included in the scholarship," Fogelson was unsure as to whether the new requirement could be interpreted as a mandatory fee or not.

New Director Leads List Of Residence Hall Changes

BY CAROLYN PARTRIDGE

Major changes in the Residence Halls have occurred over the summer. There is a new director of Residence Hall Life and a new structure in administering the halls. The new security system is also now in the halls and turned on.

Another new development is that the Residence Halls are virtually full. Improvements have additionally been made in the rooms over summer break.

Sylvia Bessegato leads the new administrative team as director of residence hall life. Ann Cocks and Justin Brown are under Bessegato as assistant directors. Brother Darrell Burns is a third administrator under Bessegato as coordinator of student services and campus ministry for the Edgely campus.

Resident Directors will be replacing the Graduate Assistants of the past years. There is one RD per hall. Greg Moser will head Sullivan Hall, Greg Schlomer will lead Brockman Hall, Karen Plaut will be RD for Kuhlman Hall, and Randal McCravy concludes the list as director of Husman Hall. As in the past, there will be one Resident Assistant (an undergraduate) per wing.

The security system has also been put into place and turned on. All doors except the front and North Lot doors of Kuhlman, the front and rear doors of Husman, and the front door of Brockman will be on alarm. According to Cocks, "We will be very strict disciplining those who trip the alarm or tamper with the system." She also added that the sign-in system will not be implemented as first planned.

Cocks also commented on why the residence halls are so full. Freshman enrollment is more than anticipated and further, requests for moving off-campus are down. "A lot of people came back (to the halls) because off-campus housing was hard to find," said Cocks.

Student Development Reorganizes

BY BRIAN STAPLETON

First-year students are sure to find their surroundings new and exciting, but what they may not realize is that, in many ways, Xavier is newer than they think. The Xavier Administration has undergone a number of changes, all of which have taken place in the last 9 months, so don't feel bad, freshmen, you're not the only ones who are new around here.

One of the newer faces around campus can be found in the office of the Director of University Center and Student Activities. That new face belongs to one Dina Mansour-Cole.

Mansour-Cole replaces William Lucci as the Director of the University Center and Student Activities, and comes to Xavier after attending school at Eastern Michigan University, and the University of Michigan. Mansour-Cole came to Xavier in May of 1984, as coordinator of the XU information center. She also has a new assistant, Dave Coleman, who replaces Shelli Miller this year as the Assistant Director of Activities.

Mansour-Cole surely has her work cut out for her. During his three years at Xavier, Lucci oversaw the establishment of the student senate as a vigorous force within the University, an increase in funding for activities by nearly 600%, and the improved administration of the yearbook in the black for three straight years.

University Center Reallocates Space Offices Change Location

BY PAUL BLAIR

Students unaware of recent changes in the University Center may have some trouble locating familiar offices this year.

Changes have centered around the student development complex, the wing of offices located in the inner lobby behind the student development desk to the left of the cafeteria. "We are utilizing space a lot more efficiently," said Dina Mansour-Cole, director of student activities. "We're trying to find space for expanded services."

The complex may be entered through the doorway to the right of the student development desk. Mansour-Cole emphasized that this area is open to students. "We want students to drop by," she said. "That's why we're in student development."

The first three offices on the left of the hallway belong to Ann Cocks and Justin Brown, assistant directors of residence life, and to Sylvia Bessegato, director.

On the left side of the hall are the offices of Sally Watson, assistant to the vice-president for student development, and David Coleman, assistant director of student activities. Dina Mansour-Cole's office is located at the end of the hall.

Turning left at the end of the hall, one faces the Student Government office, with the new SGA/SAC workroom replacing the Xavier Newswire in the office on the right.

The Newswire office has been temporarily relocated to the Fordham Room on the ground floor of the University Center. New catering offices occupy the space across the hall.

Future moves will include the relocation of the campus ministry offices from the inner lobby of the University Center, in order to accommodate increased staff.

"We'll always keep trying to find space for more services," said Mansour-Cole, "but we're pretty full."

A new statue of St. Francis Xavier has been erected on the steps in front of Hinkle Hall. The statue was donated by the Class of 1934 and was created by Bernard Schmidt of Xavier's art department. The original statue had toppled in January 1984.

Dina Mansour-Cole replaced William Lucci as director of student activities this summer.

Manresa '85 Opens Doors

BY CAROL BROSS
And LI VIQUEIRA

sharing deeper levels of their lives and listening to life experiences of others, such as senior Marta Covas.

"The best part of the day was the Eucharistic celebration held in the grotto," said junior Jean Bross, who helped plan the day along with Maria Ollier and Cathy Rauen, also juniors, and Emily Besl of Campus Ministry.

"The hot air balloon during Mass was not planned, but I think it added a special touch of uniqueness to the whole day," Bross remarked.

On Tuesday, the closing day of Manresa, a slide show depicting the week's events was shown in the University Center Theatre.

The slide show, entitled "You were there," was put together by a staff of group leader photographers, headed by Mike Huffman of the Xavier Newswire.

The slides captured special moments of the past week, showing highlights of the events as well as the unity among the Class of 1989. The presentation was an emotional end to the Manresa/Orientation for the new Xavier students.

"If anyone deserves a standing ovation, I think it is Bob Weis, Cathy Rauen, and the team of students and administrators that planned one of Xavier's best Manresa programs ever," declared Rachael Coleman, Manresa/Orientation staff member.

During the past week, the class of 1989 was oriented to Xavier in its usual style of entertainment, excitement and enlightenment. This year's Manresa/Orientation program, with the theme of "opening doors," took place Thursday, August 29 through Tuesday, September 3 for all new students to Xavier.

The planning of Manresa/Orientation began seven months ago under Bob Weis, student director of the program, Cathy Rauen, assistant director, and a staff of students and administrators.

A core team of 12 students worked with Student Development over the summer planning, producing and publicizing the program.

On Tuesday, August 27, approximately 64 upperclassmen arrived at Xavier ready to help all new students move in, become better acquainted with Xavier, and meet countless new faces. Resident students moved in Thursday and commuters were given temporary room assignments for the five-day program.

Perhaps one of the most interesting and energetic parts of the program was Playfair. Matt Weinstein, originator of the Playfair experience, entertained and exhausted approximately 300 students at the Cohen Center. Weinstein's exercises are used around the country to encourage unity and openness in large groups.

"It was a marvelous experience that carried over through the rest of Manresa. It made a dramatic impact on the students," remarked Sr. Elaine Willinger, H.M., director of Campus Ministry. "I think the idea of non-competitive play is wonderful."

Playfair had such a strong impact on students that exercises, such as standing ovations, were continued throughout the program.

The peak of Manresa came on Sunday. Students were taken to St. Francis Seminary for a day of recreation, relaxation and reflection.

The morning began with talks on taking risks given by Sr. Elaine and Mary Rose Boyle, also of Campus Ministry. The day progressed with students

"It was a great way to end Manresa with a progressive slide show," said group leader Scott Buttsworth. "Seeing all of us on the screen was fun, too."

Freshman Kristi Rawlings commented, "It's always a lot of fun to party with a live band," and Saturday night was no exception.

Everyone rocked the night away as Free Reins, a Cincinnati-based band performed on the Cohen Center fields.

In 1982, Free Reins won the Q102 Mello-Yello Contest held at Kings Island.

Other entertainment highlights of the Orientation program included a square dance, a scavenger hunt, a variety show put on by group leaders, the closing banquet and swing dance, and a performance by Trent Arterberry, a former recipient of the College Entertainer of the Year award.

During Manresa, parents of the new Xavier students also attended an orientation program which included an expanded series of lectures for their benefit.

The parents' orientation lasted only Thursday and Friday. It coincided at certain points with the Manresa schedule, such as during the Friday morning welcoming, attended by Xavier's president Rev. Charles L. Currie, S.J. and other officials in the University Center Theatre.

Ministry Seminar

Dare to Make a Difference

*Glenmary Home Missioners is a Catholic society of Priests and Brothers that ministers to the poor and needy of Appalachia, the rural South and Southwest. ## A New Name and More Changes for the Better

BY PAUL BLAIR
Editor-in-Chief

If you are reading this editorial right now, then we've done it. The editorial staff, by itself, facing equipment failure, broken disks, moving, lack of staffing and Labor Day weekend, has nevertheless managed to put together a first issue, and yet a first issue that takes a radical break with the past.

The superficial changes are perhaps the easiest to notice. This summer, while no one was looking, the senior members of the editorial board sat down with the Programs and Publications Committee to choose the name Xavier Newswire out of many otherwise absurd or boring possibilities.

The staff also revised the look of the paper, from the masthead to the standing section heads to the headlines. We hope this cleaner, more dynamic look will be more appealing to students.

Something which the most observant may notice is the added depth of the paper. This year's newspaper is one and three-quarters inches deeper than last year's. Yet it seems our new aggressive business manager, Theresa Leininger, is determined that we don't get to use any of the added space for stories.

The Newswire has a new printer this year too. While the printing company is located in Connersville, Indiana, the Newswire has lopped off a significant amount of its printing budget, despite the added size.

Another cost-saving measure which has been implemented is the use of a Macintosh computer to communicate directly with our typesetter. The savings from the printer and the typesetter will mean that the Newswire will spend at least $3,000 less of student funds this year, even despite the addition of the new staff payroll plan.

We hope that the new Wednesday publication date will be an asset to readers and advertisers alike. We hope to make this year's Newswire a lot more hard-hitting and thorough with regard to campus news.

We also hope we get an advisor. At the time of this writing, an interview process had been completed, but a final decision has not yet been made. While on-campus personnel were considered for the position, it is quite possible that this year's advisor will be someone of professional standing. We'll keep you posted.

Health: Our Concern

BY DOUG MOLL
Perspective Editor

In case you haven't heard, and apparently many of you have not, Xavier is now requiring that all undergraduate full-time students have health insurance. If you are not already on your parents' policy, or you otherwise cannot show evidence of having a policy, you must join Xavier's new health insurance program, at a cost of $264.00 per year. This was explained in a little-noticed letter sent out to students last month by Dr. Arthur Shriberg, but more about that letter later.

It is obviously a good idea for students, and anyone for that matter, to have health insurance. If you are seriously injured in an accident or beset by a severe illness and are without insurance, you could be plagued with medical bills for the rest of your life. The sickeningly high cost of medical care makes it difficult even for people with insurance to pay their left-over medical bills.

Yet what right does Xavier University have to tell its students that they must have health insurance? Very little. The university is not liable for its students' medical bills. Why, then, is it demanding that we must have insurance? Because, according to Dr. Lon Kriner, director of the McGrath Health and Counseling Center, it is "bad P.R. for the university" when a sick or an injured Xavier student walks into an area hospital without any way to pay his bills.

Of course, I'm sure Xavier officials were motivated by more altruistic reasons when they decided to implement the new policy, such as genuine concern for the uninsured student—or at least I hope they were. I have no problems with the university showing concern for us students, but when it behaves in a paternalistic manner toward us, demanding that we have insurance, then I must object. In an age when individual liberties are at a premium, the taking away of one more can only strengthen authoritarian tendencies.

Besides my theoretical objections to the new policy, there are also matters of practical concern that need to be worked out. What about students who refuse to pay for the university insurance program, either because they are financially unable to do so or because they simply object to the idea? Dr. Kriner has indicated that something would be worked out with these students—but what? Will there be a general policy for these students or will they be handled on an individual basis (in which case they may not all be treated equally)?

I also object to the letter that was sent out to students last month explaining the new health insurance policy. Many, including myself, threw the letter in the garbage can because they thought it was simply another ad. It certainly started out sounding like one. Yet further down in the letter Dr. Shriberg stated that "if we do not receive the form [indicating whether or not you want to join Xavier's new plan] by Sept. 1 we will assume that you wish to purchase the health insurance program offered through the university."

In other words, if you didn't send the form back at all, you will automatically be billed $132.00 per semester even if you already have your own insurance. What is even more incredible is that, according to Dr. Kriner, if you are billed for the insurance because you didn't send the letter back, you still will not receive coverage because you didn't fill out the application. Ridiculous? You bet!

Before anyone is billed for insurance they don't want, it is only fair that the university somehow contact the students who have not returned their forms and make damn sure whether they want it or not.

It is a shame that the university had to start out the new school year by implementing an unfair policy, and one that is being poorly implemented at that. Let's hope the rest of the year goes better, for students and administrators alike.

Education: The Hope Of Tomorrow

BY CHARLES L. CURRIE, S.J.
President, Xavier University

Welcome and welcome back! Your energy and enthusiasm are contagious. It is always invigorating to be part of the annual "new beginnings" on a university campus, and to experience the talents, freshness and challenges of our new students.

The success and excitement of Manresa-Orientations are good omens for the coming year, showing what happens when good and generous people plan well and execute effectively. I am most grateful to all of the faculty, staff and students who collaborated in the very impressive welcome for our incoming freshmen and transfer students. Our newcomers were greeted by Xavier at its best.

I also appreciate the hard work of those who spent the summer preparing for you and the new year: faculty preparing new classes; administrators developing new and better ways to serve the faculty-student interaction which is at the center of the Xavier experience; and very importantly, the men and women working quietly and often unnoticed behind the scenes so that the total environment of people, programs and facilities foster quality learning.

There never was a greater need nor greater opportunity for quality learning than there is today. The more we know, the more we know we don't know about: the highs and lows of human behavior and human potential; complex ethical issues in a pluralistic, fast-changing world; national and international economics; local and global issues of peace and justice; tradeoffs in our physical environment; and many more issues of significance to us all.

As great as the need is for quality learning, so too are the opportunities at Xavier: good, personalized teaching; exposure to a full range of learning experiences in the humanities, sciences, business and professional studies; the opportunity to create in a range of media from a computer keyboard to an art and music studio, to an internship; exposure to significant issues through co-curricular lectures, symposia and conversations; a whole range of personal development opportunities.

The list is only partial, but the point is obvious. You have a full and exciting agenda for your life of learning. My wish and prayer for you is that you begin enthusiastically, taking every opportunity you can to learn, to grow, to be the very special men and women you are. Xavier needs your very best; so too the world beyond the campus.

May God bless each and every one of you with a specially successful year of growth towards your full potential.

PRO-Peace: Dream Into Reality

BY KAREN LITFIN
National Campus Coordinator
PRO-Peace

The Great Peace March may sound like pie in the sky, but organizers from PRO-Peace, the sponsoring organization, believe they can make it a reality. They plan to have 5,000 people walk from Los Angeles to Washington, D.C. beginning March 1, 1986. The sacrifice of the marchers will be great: nine months away from friends, family, schools and careers. But their goal is equally lofty: to move the people of the world to say to their leaders, "Take the nuclear weapons down so that we and our children may live."

PRO-Peace organizers believe that such a monumental goal requires thousands of people to make a major sacrifice. They hope to capture the imagination of the world when 5,000 people leave their homes to walk through desert heat, blizzards and rain to ensure that we will have a future.

If The Great Peace March is beginning to sound naive and grandiose, a look at PRO-Peace staff will dispel any doubts. PRO-Peace Executive Director David Mixner is a veteran political organizer and fundraiser with a 25-year career going back to the Civil Rights movement. He was one of the four organizers of the Vietnam War Moratorium, and has recently transferred his P.R. firm to his employees to devote himself fully to PRO-Peace. His staff of professionals have suspended their careers to guarantee the success of the organization.

The cynic may still wonder what is unique about PRO-Peace. How can this movement achieve actual disarmament where other groups have succeeded only in raising the issue? PRO-Peace says that their nine-month march will keep the issue alive in a dramatic way, unlike large one-day rallies. Moreover, they have a four-part international strategy to involve citizens in Western and Eastern Europe. They agree with President Eisenhower's statement, "The people want peace so much that one day the governments will get out of the way and let them have it."

PRO-Peace is different from past efforts simply because of its size and scope. But it's also different for another reason: it offers a message of hope and optimism rather than one of doom and gloom.

Students will be a crucial part of the effort; march organizers expect that half the marchers will be students. One of PRO-Peace's main objectives is to break the image that students are apathetic and fatalistic about the prospect of nuclear war by offering an alternative: a means whereby students can make a difference today.

We all know what a one-megaton bomb can do if it falls on the student union building. What we need to know is that we can do something now so that this will never happen. PRO-Peace affirms our belief that we can shape our destiny.

PRO-Peace is looking for a campus organizer. See Doug Moll for details.

Muskies Go With Luck Of The Irish: Gillen Replaces Staak

BY TOM JORDAN
Sports Columnist

This treatise I have made, O Theophilus, of all the coaching changes that have been made over the past several months. It all began with the retirement of Marv Harshman from the University of Washington last spring. Then shortly thereafter, Joe B. Hall retired from his post at Kentucky and was replaced by Eddie Sutton who left Arkansas. Then Nolan Richardson left Tulsa to go to Arkansas. Sounds like coaches' musical chairs, hey?

It could never happen at Xavier. After all Bob Staak had all the reason in the world to stay at Xavier. A post as assistant vice-president for athletic development, three consecutive winning seasons and a team returning all players from last year's 16-13 squad. Wrong. On Saturday, August 3, Bob Staak gave athletic director Jeff Fogelson his written resignation and was officially installed as the new head basketball coach at Wake Forest University. Staak replaced Carl Tacy who, you guessed it, retired.

So what had been the dilemma without, was now the dilemma within. Who would be the new basketball coach? A nine-member search committee including Fogelson set out to accomplish the task. The final decision would be made by the Rev. Charles L. Currie, S.J., Xavier president, Dr. Arthur Shriberg, vice president for student development, and Fogelson.

Finally after nine days of speculations and rumors, a press conference was called for 4:30 p.m. Monday, August 12, in Xavier's Terrace Room. Fr. Currie approached the mike and said, "It is a pleasure to welcome you to this happy event as we introduce to you our new head basketball coach, Mr. Pete Gillen."

Pete who? Never heard of him, huh? Well for every person that hasn't heard of the 38-year old Gillen, there are ten who have. An unidentified source has said that prior to accepting the head coaching position at Xavier, Gillen had recently turned down a $95,000 annual salary as an assistant coach to New York Knicks coach Hubie Brown. The screening committee was impressed with Gillen's standards and the fact that Brown considered Gillen worthy enough to offer him a position in the NBA.

Gillen brings with him an impressive resume. He began coaching high school teams in 1970 before moving to the collegiate level in 1975-76 as an assistant at Hawaii. Gillen switched to Virginia Military Institute the next two years and during his tenure there, the Keydets posted back-to-back 20-victory seasons including an East regional final appearance in the '76-'77 season.

On to Villanova (remember them?)

for two campaigns as an assistant coach where he sharpened his already fine recruiting skills. He was responsible for recruiting Stewart Granger who played in the NBA for the Cleveland Cavaliers for one year. Street and Smith basketball magazine voted Villanova's recruiting class of 1978-79 as the 19th best in the nation. Gillen recruited two of the three players signed that year.

Hold your hats. From 1980 to 1985 Gillen moved in as an assistant coach at Notre Dame under Digger Phelps. Highlights at South Bend? Responsible for recruiting David Rivers, who was selected as the best freshman in the United States by Basketball Weekly newspaper for the 1984-85 season. Bob Gibbons' All Star Sports Report from Lenoir, North Carolina picked Notre Dame's recruiting class in 1981-82 as the best in the United States, while at UND the Irish made two appearances each in the NCAA tournament and the NIT.

Not bad for a thick red-haired, Brooklyn native, who some say resembles Huckleberry Finn. "Close your eyes," says Jeff Fogelson, "and you'll hear Al McGuire."

Gillen had previously been in the running for jobs at Fairfield University, his alma mater, and St. Bonaventure. But Gillen turned down both as well as the job with the Knicks. What is it about the Xavier job that attracted Gillen? "The great thing that attracted me was Cincinnati," said Gillen. "That, to me, is very, very important. It's a great sports city. I've always been a Pete Rose fan myself, and he's always been someone I've tried to emulate."

"It's a great sports city. Also you can draw from the community. You have a great source of potential recruits right there within your background. At certain schools, where they don't have a lot of quality basketball players right by, it's a disadvantage."

"I spent ten years as a college assistant. I wanted to have my own team and, given a chance, see what I could do on my own. I stayed because I believe in college basketball. I'm very comfortable with it."

Apparently, the players are comfortable with Gillen. "After talking to him, I was very satisfied with the situation," said senior point guard Ralph Lee. "Mr. Fogelson knew the best situation for us. He knows us very well. When he selected Gillen, after talking to him, I don't think they could have made a better decision."

"I've had several private meetings [with Gillen]," said sophomore guard Byron Larkin. "We talked about many things. I'm looking forward to the new season and playing for him."

Besides Gillen, Nevada-Las Vegas assistant Tim Grgurich was a strong candidate for the vacancy. So strong, that up until the press conference, many believed that Grgurich would be the man. Also considered were former Xavier assistant Wayne Morgan and Harry Krohn, a Staak assistant for three years.

Gillen will not keep Krohn as an assistant. Staak took one of his assistants, Jerry Wainwright, to Wake Forest. Gillen has yet to name his assistants.

So the question is, "Can Gillen transfer some of that Irish success to the Xavier campus?" That question can only be answered on the hardwood. The Muskies open at home on Sunday, Nov. 24 against Southeastern Louisiana.

Stay tuned, Theophilus. I'm quite sure there is more to come.

WNOP welcomes

We're looking for a few sound minds.

So maybe you've never heard of Rohr. That's okay.

But internationally known aerospace companies such as Lockheed, McDonnell Douglas, Airbus Industries, to name a few, count on us to provide the technology and hardware to equip their aircraft with engine nacelles that significantly reduce engine noise as well as structural weight.

Other on-going programs like the F-14 nacelle for Grumman, RohrBond™ ducts for the F-15 and F-16 engines, thrust reversers for Business Jet Aircraft, nacelles for the Boeing 737, the McDonnell Douglas MD-80, and the Airbus A-300, 310, 320, create stable and diverse assignments.

If you've got a mind to let your ideas finish with big results, we could be looking for you. We have a diversity of challenging opportunities in all aspects of engineering, manufacturing and business. And we offer a choice of two popular Southern California environments.

At our San Diego location, you'll enjoy activities like sailing, tennis and golf all year-round. At our Riverside facility, you'll have easy access to the area's scenic mountains and deserts. Both provide salaries and benefits that are competitive with other aerospace corporations.

If all this sounds like what you're looking for in a career, why not give us a piece of your mind? Contact your Placement Director for an interview or send your resume to: College Relations,

•• Over The Wire ••

BY BRIAN STAPLETON
Poetry Contest

All junior laureates out there, listen up: the American College Poets anthology is sponsoring a national college poetry contest. Any student is eligible to submit his or her verse, and all entries must be original. Submissions must be typed, double-spaced, and there are no restrictions on form or theme. Poems, however, must be 14 lines or less. There is an initial one dollar registration fee, and a fee of fifty cents for each additional poem. Now for the good stuff: First place receives an award of $100, second place gets $50, third place receives $25, and fourth an award of $15. All who are interested should mail entries to:

International Publications
P.O. Box 44044-L
Los Angeles, CA 9044

Picture Show

More from the arts and crafts scene. The photographs of Xavier's own Gregory E. Rust will be exhibited at Emery Galleries on Xavier's Edgecliff campus, September 8, from 2-4 p.m. The photographs are a group of silver images depicting American culture and landscape. The work focuses on the relationship between man and his environment. This exhibition is one not to be missed.

Even More Arts and Crafts

Maybe you haven't had enough yet. Besides, this is probably the only chance any of you mugs will have to inject some culture into your lives. Anyhow, there's more in store. From September 6 to October 12, the Contemporary Arts Center will be presenting "Body and Soul," an exhibition of recent figurative sculpture. Artists in the exhibition include Jonathan Borofsky, Judith Shea, Genna Watson, and Barry Ledoux (no relation to Ponce leBeuf, of the Beouf Brothers). Everything the C.A.C. presidents is usually very interesting, so all exhibitionists out there will want to show up.
